THE BRIEF

A renowned Dublin department store required a bespoke drying solution after its roof collapsed in during a very heavy storm. The wet weather and a breached sprinkler system caused the store to suffer extensive and severe water damage.

THE BACKGROUND

After the full extent of the damage was assessed, the building contractor and conservation architect turned to Cross Hire for our drying expertise – and to ensure plaster work and design features dating back to the 1900s were fully preserved.

THE SOLUTION

Our team implemented a solution incorporating a number of desiccant dryers and ductwork. With this approach, our solution achieved the desired results – bringing the moisture content down at a controlled rate to protect the listed structure and its interior fittings, and all with minimum disruption.
